

Application for International Ph.D. Program in Economics

For October 2018 Admission

Department of Economics

Yokohama National University

Japan

Preface

The Department of Economics at Yokohama National University (YNU), located in the second largest metropolis in Japan, launched a new graduate program in Fall 2013 (both Master's and Ph.D.) in economics taught entirely in English. The program is designed to provide students with academic knowledge and tools in economic theory and empirics of the highest global standards, and at the same time is well-grounded in policy-relevance. We seek motivated students from all over the world, who are eager to work as academic researchers, specialists or professionals in the international arena. Our program has two distinctive paths. First, we offer an American-style economics program with an emphasis on international economics. Second, we also offer a policy-oriented program employing both comparative economic systems and political economy approaches.

Graduates of the Ph.D. Program in Economics (typically 3 years) will be able to conduct leading edge research and publish their research in international journals or present their research in international conferences, with particular strengths in the field of international economics, as well as in comparative economic systems and international political economy. They will also have the opportunity to acquire high-level research skills in various methods of empirical analysis and be able to produce policy-oriented papers to further the development of emerging economies.

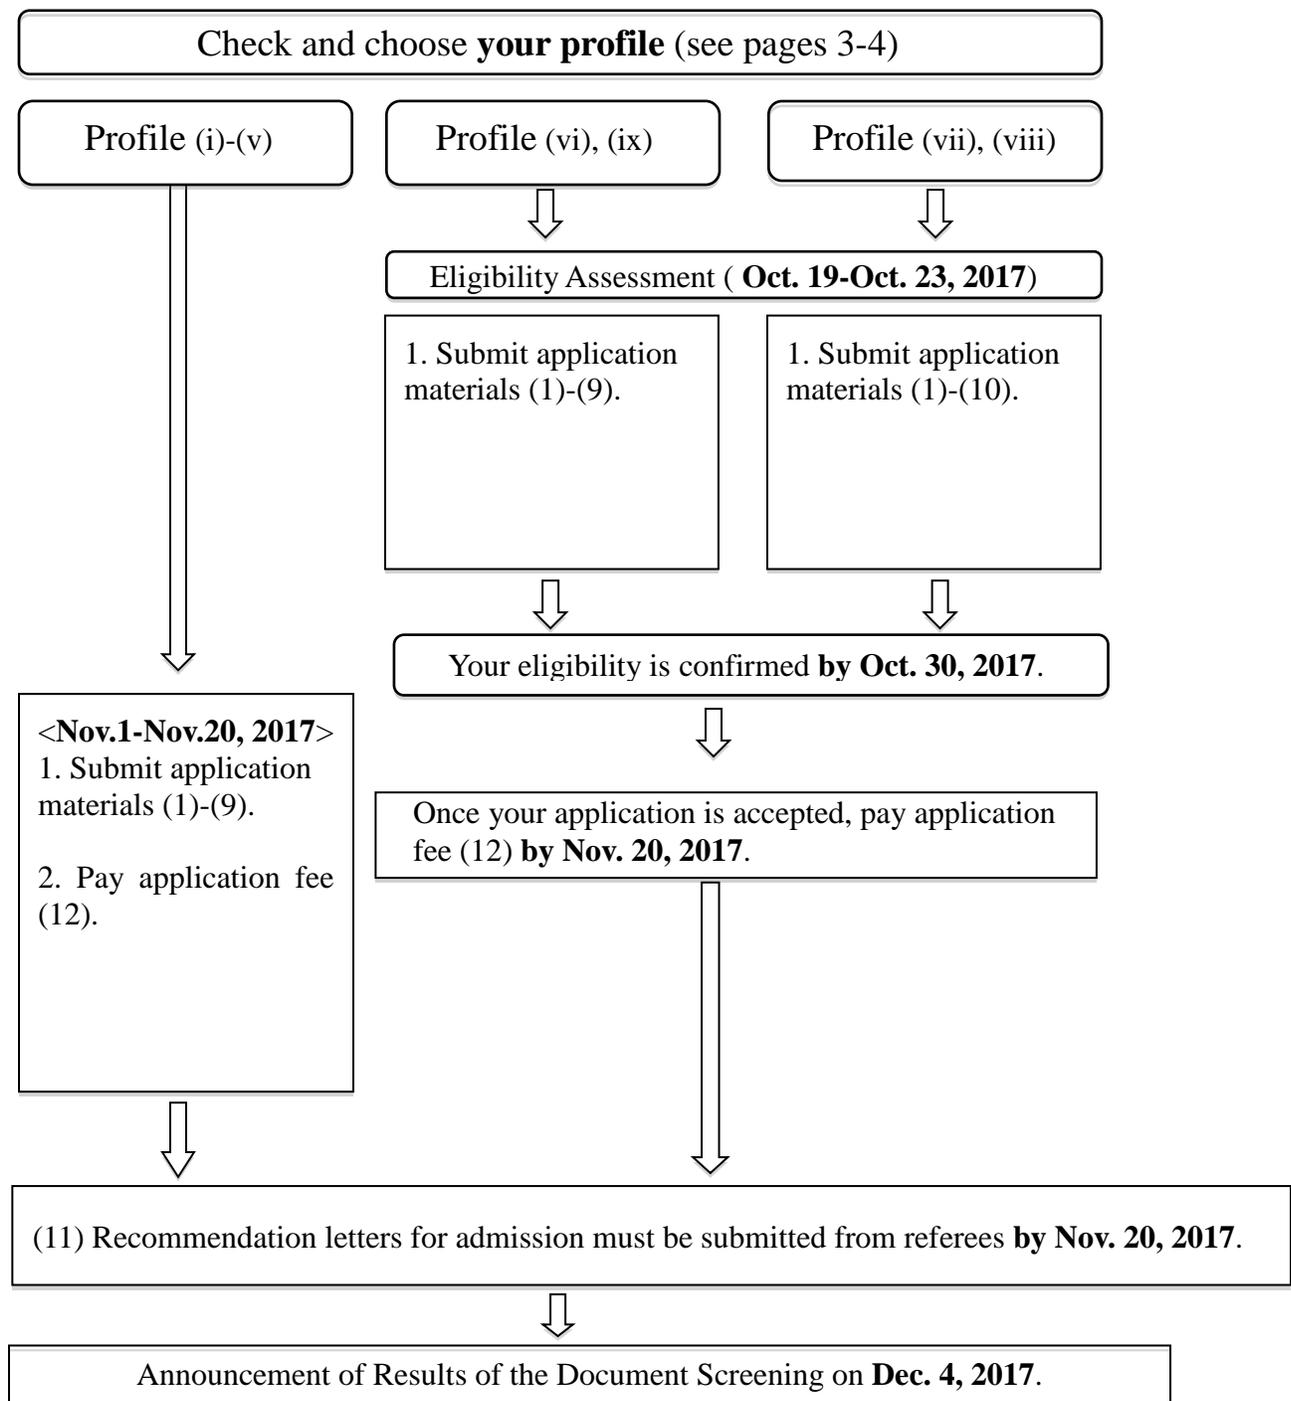

Our Ph.D. Program seeks candidates who have already obtained the skills and knowledge in economics at a Master's level and who have strong motivation and the aptitude to continue studying economics at a deeper level both theoretical and empirically. After completion of their Ph.D. degree, graduates would typically go on (or return) to a career in academia, work at international organizations, or return to their home country in a high-level government position.

In our Ph.D. Program, we offer advanced courses focusing on either: (1) international economics; or (2) comparative economic systems and international political economy. Through thesis advising, seminars and workshops our faculty members support the doctoral candidates' work on academic papers that can ultimately be presented at international conferences and submitted to internationally refereed journals for publication. The goal is to complete a doctoral dissertation of the highest caliber. The degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Economics is conferred upon completion of the program.

1) Monbukagakusho (MEXT) Honors Scholarship (Gakushu Shoreihi) for Privately Financed International Students by Pre-arrival Admission (University Recommenders)

[Must be applied for after matriculation]

Japan Student Services Organization (hereafter "JASSO") offers MEXT Honors Scholarship for Privately Financed International Students who attend a university or other institution of higher education in Japan. In conjunction with this scholarship, JASSO sponsors a reservation program that sets aside scholarships allotments for privately financed international students who enroll in a graduate school in Japan directly from overseas (i.e. applicants do not have to visit Japan before enrollment). Privately financed international students who enroll in YNU's International Ph.D. Program in Economics meet these criteria.

The scholarship (graduate level) is paid in the monthly amount determined for that traditional Japanese school year (April-March). The amount is subject to change each year. For reference, the monthly stipend for the 2017-2018 school year is 48,000 yen.

After a scholarship has been reserved for an applicant, it is awarded for a certain period that is based on the time that the applicant enrolls in a Japanese graduate school. For students enrolling in the International Ph.D. Program in Economics in October 2018, duration of the scholarship is six months, from October 2018 to March 2019. Students need to compete for the Monbukagakusho (regular) Honors Scholarships or other scholarships for privately financed international students during the subsequent period.

All applications must be processed through YNU. Direct applications from students will not be accepted. The 2018-2019 application for MEXT Honors Scholarship must be made after matriculation.

For more information, check the YNU website below:

http://www.gakuseisupport.ynu.ac.jp/expense/foreign/jasso_reservation_programe/
