Type of Courses

The International M.A. Program in Economics offers two major types of classes: (1) Lectures and (2) Seminars.

1. Lectures (2 credits for one semester)

These are lectures by a faculty member or faculty members. There are three major types of lecture:

- Lectures regularly offered in International M.A. Program in Economics.
- Special Lectures irregularly offered in International M.A. Program in Economics.
- GSISS Joint Courses on thesis writing, presentation & discussion skills in English offered in Graduate School of International Social Sciences.

2. Seminars

Seminars are led by the student's advisor and can include directed reading, dissertation advising, etc.

- Seminars I a, I b, II a, II b (2 credits for one semester)
- Seminars I a and I b must be taken in pairs in the first year and Seminars II a, II b must be taken in pairs in the second year. Students intending to complete the program in one year must take Seminars I a, I b, II a, and II b in the first year.

Program Requirements

Students must either:

- Complete 36 credits from the courses in the table on page 7, pass Qualifying Exams (QE) and then submit either a “term paper” or Ph.D. thesis proposal.

or
- Complete 32 credits from the courses in the table plus write, submit and defend a traditional Master’s thesis.
 - Of the 36 (32, if Thesis option) credits, 8 credits must be from Seminar I a, I b, II a, II b, regardless of the option chosen.
 - 28 (24, if Thesis option) credits must be from lectures and the designated Special Lectures in the table on page 7.
 - Of these 28 (24, if Thesis option) credits, at least 4 credits must be from the “core” courses in the table on page 7.
- Students are also required to have an overall 2.0 GPA (max: 4.5) or better for all courses taken at YNU.

Additional details of the Program

- Students who have sufficient Japanese ability may take and receive credits from certain Master’s lectures offered in the Department of Economics which are conducted in Japanese. These credits count towards the required 28 (24, if Thesis option) credits mentioned above.

- Up to 8 credits of these 28 (24, if Thesis option) credits may be from the designated Master's lectures offered in Department of Business Administration, Department of International and Business Law, the Law School of the Graduate School of International Social Sciences (GSISS), the Graduate School of Education (up to 6 credits), the Graduate School of Engineering (up to 6 credits), the Graduate School of Environment and Information Sciences (up to 6 credits), the Graduate School of Urban Innovation (up to 6 credits), and certain upper-level courses offered by the College of Economics, most of which are offered in Japanese, if the student's language proficiency is sufficiently high. However, prior approval from the course instructor must be obtained before course registration.
- Some courses outside the program may be taken for credit, but the credits earned do not count towards the degree. These include GSISS Joint Courses, Special Lectures (other than those designated by the Program in the table on page 7), Analysis III, Measure Theory, Stochastic Models, Engineering Mathematics Probability, Functional Analysis offered in School of Engineering Science's Mathematical Science Program, Japanese language courses offered by the International Students Center of YNU (for international students only) , other foreign language courses and lectures offered in the bachelor's program in economics, most of which are offered in Japanese, if the student's language proficiency is sufficiently high.
- Students who took the designated Master's lectures offered in Department of Economics when they were undergraduate students can use up to ten credits toward the master's degree unless they used the credits toward their bachelor's degree.
- Up to 4 credits may be taken from the following lectures offered in the International Ph.D. Program in Economics. The credits earned will count toward the Ph.D. degree, but not toward the M.A. degree.

- The students are not allowed to stay in the Program past the end of the academic year when they satisfy all the requirements for the M.A. degree.
- The students can graduate from the Program either at the end of the Spring semester or at the end of the Fall semester provided that they meet all the requirements for the M.A. degree and they will have stayed in the Program for at least one year by the time they leave the Program. See Early Completion for details.

Electing QE or Thesis Option

Students must consult their advisors and elect either the QE or Thesis option by Friday, November 15, 2013 after entering the program. Students may change their option (QE or Thesis) at the beginning of the Spring semester or at the beginning of the second year conditional upon their advisor's approval.

Two Recommended Paths and Course Offerings

Because of the focused nature of the program, there is very little flexibility in the courses a student can take to complete the degree. The table below gives two recommended paths, one specialized mainly in International Economics and Public Economics and the other in Comparative Economics. This is a recommended path for those opting to take the Qualifying Exams (QE). For those who choose to write a thesis, four (4) less credits (a total of 32) are required. Of course, students can register and receive more than the minimum credits if they so choose.

Advisor

- The student's advisor is responsible for guiding the student until he/she completes the program.
- The department gives consideration to the student's interests, preferred approach, and academic background as well as fields of research/education of the faculty members, and determines the student's advisor after admission. The student shall download, fill out, and submit the questionnaire on his/her interests and preferred approach by the following due date.

Thursday, October 10, 2013

- As a general rule, the advisor of each student is chosen by the department from the full-time faculty members of the major that the student belongs to. However, a faculty member from another major can also be chosen as an advisor.

For those opting to take the Qualifying Exams (QEs)

Path to M.A.

- October of the 1st year:

The GPA System

- Students will be given GPs (Grade Points) according to their academic evaluation, and their GPA will be calculated based on the following formula.
- Calculation formula: $GPA = \sum (GPs \times \text{Number of credits}) / \text{Number of credits from all registered courses}$
- Only lectures are included in the GPA calculation and an overall GPA of 2.0 or better is required for completion. Along with the introduction of the GPA system, academic evaluations (scores) and GPs shall be given as follows:
